Keynote Talk 1

Lesson Starters for Purposeful Engagement

Presenter:

Lisa Jane Ashes

*Teaching and Learning
Consultant, Author and
Keynote Speaker*

The first few minutes of a lesson can make or break the learning that follows. Whether you are new to teaching and looking for ideas to get lessons started effectively, or you are simply looking for some interesting ideas to steal, Lisa will provide you with as many strategies as ten minutes will allow, to help start your lessons in powerful, creative ways that set the scene for an excellent learning experience.

Keynote Talk 2

When the Music Changes so does the Dance. Tips For Teachers From Neuroscience

Presenter:

David Hodgson

*Teaching and Learning
Consultant, Author and
Keynote Speaker*

An author and consultant, David's unique blend of educational pedagogy and the latest neuroscience research enables teachers, students and school leaders to identify and capitalise on their natural strengths. David will share the research, the application and some of the great results he's created with pupils and will outline some of the positive effects the chemicals serotone and oxytocin has on the learning brain.

Keynote Talk 3

Every Learner Matters – Classroom strategies to support Growth Mindset, SEND & Wellbeing

Presenter:

Nina Jackson

*Teaching & Learning,
Wellbeing & SEND Consultant,
trainer and author*

The COVID-19 pandemic has undoubtedly affected all of us and as we prepare to re-open our schools what matters most is how we can support the emotional wellbeing of our young people. Nina will provide an overview of some of the most effective strategies that will allow all children to access the curriculum through differentiated inclusive approaches and the many ways to help them nurture a growth mindset that will boost confidence and motivation.

Keynote Talk 4

Creative Retrieval Practice to support learners, learning and progress as we return to school

Presenter:

Crista Hazell

*Teaching and Learning
Consultant, Author and
Keynote Speaker*

Harness powerful teaching strategies creativity and retrieval practice all in one, to push your learners to not only express themselves creatively but also to 'show you exactly what they know' leaving you with a very clear idea of misconceptions, gaps in knowledge and what they have forgotten! Whether it's the start of the year or midway through these strategies are always great to use!

Keynote Talk 5

Co-creating your School Curriculum - What, how and why...

Presenter:

Laura Saunders

Leadership Consultant & Accredited Coach

'Co-creation involves developing deeper relationships between student and teacher, and between students and other students. Education is perceived as a shared endeavour where learning and teaching are done with students not to them.' (Bovill, C., 2019). Utilise this Buspool talk to consider what curriculum co-creation means for you, how you might approach it in your school context, and crucially, why it could support you and your team in deepening your relationships with students towards greater levels of active learning.
